Location: Orem, UT

Hale Center Theater is Utah's premiere family theater and one of the largest and most respected community theaters in the country. Hale Center is a not-for-profit organization that offers theater education in addition to 400 live performances each year in its 613-seat state-of-the-art auditorium in Orem, Utah.

Committed to bringing an exceptional live theater performance experience to all patrons, Hale Center selected an assistive listening system from Listen Technologies Corp. so audience members with hearing loss and disabilities might hear sound clearly and without interference in its playhouse. The Hale Center uses the LT-800-072 Stationary Transmitter, which connects to the theater's main audio system to broadcast a high quality audio signal to portable LR-400-072 belt pack receivers used by audience members.

The system transmitter plugs into the amplification system, with the sound wirelessly sent over FM radio waves to each patron wearing a discreet Listen battery-powered receiver and headset. Hale Center stores the receivers and headsets in a convenient carrying case and lends them to theatergoers upon request. Patrons fit the headset comfortably on their ears, turn on the receiver and enjoy the clarity and intelligibility of performers' voices. After the performance, patrons return the receivers and headsets and Hale Center personnel clean and store them for future use.
